Suicide of Washington Rose, a Prominent Farmer of Near Pembroke.

Washington Rose, a well known farmer who lived three and a half miles north of Pembroke, committed suicide Saturday by hanging. His dead body was found hanging in a vacant cabin on his farm. He was last seen about 10 o'clock and it was several hours later when the body was found. A search was instituted when he failed to come to dinner. He used a plow line, which was tied to the timbers above the floor.

He was not in good mental condition and had been despondent for some time. Decedent was about 50 years old and leaves a widow and six or seven children. He was a brother of Mr. J. M. Rose who recently moved from Pembroke to this city. He was a church member. The body was buried near Fairview Sunday.

The mixed train now arrives here at 9:40 a. m., instead of 7:40.

TWO FUNNY PLAYS

Presented By The Rival Societies
of S. K. College.

The Students of South Kentucky College gave two comedies at the Opera House Friday night to a large and appreciative audience. The young men were the actors in the first called "Slasher and Crasher" and it was followed by "The Chaparron," presented by the young ladies. All the characters were well sustained and the plays were greatly enjoyed from beginning to end. There were many comical situations and a constant round of fun.

COURT ADJOURNS.

Three Pembroke Negroes Under Death Sentence Take Appeal.

Other Convicts Carried to Eddyville and Three Boys Will Go to Reform School.

Circuit Court adjourned Saturday, after a session of six weeks.

George Holland, Frank Meriwether and Dick Carney, three of the Pembroke negroes under death sentence for the murder of the unknown man, have taken an appeal to the Court of Appeals. The trio were to have been hanged here April 15. This operates as a stay of proceedings indefinitely as it will be a year or two before the cases can be passed upon by the Court of Appeals. In the meanwhile it will cost the State about $550 a year to board the trio.

The following prisoners were taken to Eddyville Sunday: Charles Vinson, horse stealing, five years; Mack Johnson, cow stealing, two and half years; Dangerfield Ware, murder, life. Ware was convicted a year ago of the murder of John Tandy at a festival near Pembroke in September, 1902. A motion for a new trial was made and was just argued Saturday. A new hearing was refused.

Will Boates, Chester Kay and Webber Watkins, boys convicted of breaking into warehouse and given one year each in the penitentiary, will be taken to the School of Reform at Lexington this week. All of the above mentioned parties are colored.

SMALLPOX AT GRACEY

Well Developed Case Reported and Quarantine Ordered.

Mack Ricketts, a negro man living in Gracey, was yesterday reported to be broken out with smallpox. He recently returned from Paducah, where it is supposed he contracted the disease. The citizens at Gracey promptly reported the case to County Judge Fowler and Health Officer Dr. J. B. Jackson. A quarantine was ordered, but no guards had been placed on duty at noon yesterday. The sick man is on the South side of the I. C. railroad, in the eastern part of the town, and his cabin is one of several close together. The disease will have to be handled very energetically and promptly to avoid a serious spread of the epidemic. The safest plan would be to move the patient out of Gracey at once and put him in some house thoroughly isolated and under guard. It will be almost impossible to keep negroes from coming and going, ignorantly or otherwise, if the disease is allowed to exist in a thickly settled part of the town. Let the county officials act vigorously and take no chances.

YANCEY GETS OFF.

Pays a Fine Instead of Going Over the Road.

Press L. Yancey, convicted of maliciously shooting Thomas Mobley, Town Marshal of Fairview, and given one year in the penitentiary, was saved from the disgrace of having to go to prison. The court granted a new trial and the lawyers among themselves fixed it up for Yancey's friends to pay a fine of $500 on a plea of guilty to a charge of shooting in sudden heat of passion. This was done, the money was paid and Yancey went home rejoicing.

QUARANTINE RAISED

And No Further Danger Feared at Green Farm.

The smallpox scare east of town has abated and the persons quarantined in Mr. Geo. V. Green's home in the country have been released.

Shelby Green, Mr. J. M. Green's little son, went to Owensboro Saturday and will soon join his parents at their new home in Texas. Miss Tillie Moore, of Nashville, returned home Sunday. Others in quarantine were members of Mr. Green's family. The house has been disinfected and the furnishings of the room in which Miss Rosalie Green was sick have been destroyed. The young lady bears no marks of smallpox on her face and some of the doctors now assert that the disease was not smallpox, but chicken-pox. At any rate, the prudent course was pursued and the danger is over.

RAW EASTER.

Spring Gets Another Very Severe Backset.

There was another decided drop in the temperature Saturday night that made Easter a cold, windy day, unfit for new spring goods. Yesterday morning it was cold enough for this ice and but for the strong wind there would have been a killing frost. Warmer weather is now promised by the weather Clerk.

HIS WORD FOR IT.

No Need For Hopkinsville People To Do Any Guessing.

No need for Hopkinsville people to try about in search for relief from back, urinary weakness, and other symptoms of kidney trouble. A man whom you can believe says that Dora's Kidney Pills will reach all such cases.

C. B. Eades, of the firm of Eades & Davis, proprietors of the Co. 1 Yard on Seventh St., and the L. & N. R. R., and who lives at 402 E. 7th St., says: "I saw Dora's Kidney Pills advertised and so highly recommended by persons who had used them that I went to Thomas & Traher's drug store, procured a box and gave them thorough trial. I had suffered for a long time with a heavy pain across the small of my back, sharp and acute at times. When I caught cold it always settled in my back and there followed a weakness of the kidneys which was exasperating especially at night. I tried various remedies but none of them gave anything like as satisfactory results as I obtained from the use of Dora's Kidney Pills. I am pleased to say that they brought me great relief. I have recommended the Pills and will continue to do so to all my friends and acquaintances."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Take only Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin, which is sold by your druggist in 50c and $1.00 bottles.

MAKING OXYGEN FROM AIR.

Interesting Operation Used by an Ice Company of Los Angeles.

A plant for the manufacture of oxygen to be used in charging its distilled water was put in operation recently at an ice plant in Los Angeles, Cal. Oxygenated water is now being prescribed by physicians in certain diseases, and hence a cheap and simple method of separating the oxygen in the atmosphere becomes a matter of importance, says the Washington Star. The process employed by the Los Angeles company is based on the principle that a certain chemical compound—manganate of soda—readily parts with the oxygen it contains when subjected to the action of a jet of steam. A blast of air on the residuum reforms it into manganate of soda, this chemical possessing the peculiar property of absorbing oxygen from the atmosphere, parting with it when exposed to steam, and being re-formed again upon exposure to the air. The process may be continued indefinitely, when the ingredients are added in the retort and proper connections from air and steam made. No more chemicals are required. It may be likened to dipping a sponge in water, squeezing it dry and then repeating the operation indefinitely.

Oxygen made by this process, it is claimed, contains no gas other than oxygen, and no elements of any description other than slight traces of atmospheric nitrogen. Hence it requires no washing to free it from chlorine, or any purification whatever. The oxygen, direct from the retorts, is stored in gasometers and then forced into distilled water by means of a Twifield carbonating machine, which pumps the water and oxygen at the same time, thoroughly agitating both before bottling. The bottling is done under a pressure of 60 pounds.

GIFTS OF AMERICAN WOMAN.

Secret of Charm Lies in Her Individuality—Is a Born Talker.

The American woman is delightfully pretty, often extremely lovely, but rarely classically beautiful, says the London World. Beyond all women, perhaps, does she possess the gifts of expression and genius for pose. With her the sense of knowing what is proper to do under certain conditions seldom fails. She knows her strong points physically and how to throw them into most striking relief.

An American woman's taste in dress is as perfect as anything can be in this imperfect world. Of her genius for adapting herself to her environment there can be no question. Such a mere accident of birth as the one which gives her a pork butcher or a patent pillmaker for her father is no drawback to her ultimate career.

One secret of the American woman's charm is her individuality. She is always original and gay and merry, generally amiable, and more often than not good-tempered. All American women are born talkers, and they possess the faculty of interesting their listeners in subjects no more occult than a visit to the milliner's or "momma's" love of "romances." To her husband the American may be capricious, inconsiderate, selfish, exacting, but in her relation to her children all the nobler qualities of her character come out. In them she forgets egotism and is ready for self-sacrifice. As years lay hold upon her she becomes more and more disciplined by her children and more and more obedient. In this phase the American is at once a pathetic and curious spectacle.

Former Mikados.

The predecessors of the mikado of Japan—a highly educated personage, bent on carrying out the methods in vogue in western Europe—were wholly different from him. It is not many years since the ruler of Japan lived the life of a recluse. Formerly he was regarded by his subjects as some one near to a god. People bowed down before him and affected to worship him. Although invariably surrounded by a huge body guard of military officers, he never stirred out of doors. By general consent he was altogether too sacred to be seen by the populace.

Some of the machines for making matches turn out about 2,500,000 matches daily, or about 900,000,000 annually.

FOR CONGRESS.

HON. A. O. STANLEY, of Henderson county.

It is said provisions are getting so scarce in Manchuria that there is nothing a man can chew.

Judge Parker was first appointed to the bench by the then Gov. Hill in 1885 and he and Hill are still such close friends that the former leader has the credit of being behind the Parker boom.

After a long deadlock, Mrs. Smith, of Richmond, was elected hostess of the Kentucky building at St. Louis. Well, some family had to be represented in the selection and why not the Smith family?

Sidney Johnston Hayden, a Louisville man in New York City, jumped out of the 21st story of a skyscraper with suicide as his object. He succeeded. The distance he fell was 325 feet.

Miss Pearl Trigg, of Glasgow, will be married April 20 to Mr. Morgan Shuster, surgeon of the port at Manila, P. I. They will proceed on a wedding tour to the Philippines.

Harry Sommers, of the Elizabethtown News, has evidently joined the Hearst forces in Kentucky. His paper contains a two column defense of the New York journalist, backed up by a very complimentary review of his record and business career.

Now that chicken stealing is a felony in Kentucky, the friends of the watermelon are objecting to the discrimination in favor of the chicken. The enforcement of the new law is expected to make many of the strong Republican counties reliably Democratic, as convicts are deprived of suffrage.

During the trial of the Bennett will case at New Haven, Conn. Wednesday, the court sternly ordered Mr. William Jennings Bryan to sit down. If Mr. Bryan obeyed, we move that the New Haven judge be made boss of the democratic party, and that he strike out the word "to" in "to sit down," and substitute the words, "Go way back and,"—Cynthia Democrat.

Rev. P. T. Hale, of Owensboro, has accepted the call to the presidency of the Southwestern Baptist University at Jackson Tenn. His resignation leaves the Owensboro church, one of the strongest of this denomination in the State, without a pastor. Dr. Hale's wife, formerly Miss Lena Bolinger, of Mayfield, was educated at Bethel College, in this city.

Hon. Alexander Campbell Tompkins, of Owensboro, whose death is hourly expected, was paralyzed three weeks ago. He was born in Virginia in 1840 and has for years been prominent in business and politics. He served in the Legislature of 1895 and again in 1901. He was a candidate for delegate to St. Louis when stricken. He was a Confederate Veteran and a man of wealth, his estate being worth $150,000 to $200,000. Samuel W. Tompkins is his only child.

How's This?

That Tired Feeling

Is a Common Spring Trouble. It's a sign that the blood is deficient in vitality, just as pimples and other eruptions are signs that the blood is impure.

It's a warning, too, which only the hazardous fail to heed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Remove it, give new life, new courage, strength and animation.

They cleanse the blood and clear the complexion.

Accept no substitute. "I felt tired all the time and could not sleep. After taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a while I could sleep well and the tired feeling had gone. This great medicine has also cured me of eczema." Mrs. C. M. Root, Glend, Conn.

An ordinance recently passed by the city council prohibits any person from entering Hopewell cemetery. "For the purpose of performing any labor upon, or placing any kind of improvement upon any lot within said cemetery, under contract with the owner of such lot. Provided: That nothing in this ordinance shall be construed to prevent the owner of any lot from erecting or putting in any monument or tombstone, by contract, or from doing any sodding or improving upon his or her lot, in person."

If the Kentuckian properly understands this ordinance, the council has apparently exceeded its powers under the constitution. Many of the lots, in fact most of them, are private property, the owners holding deeds to them. The constitution guarantees to every one the peaceable possession of his own property, and it is questionable if the council has any authority to prohibit the improvement of private lots, in or out of the cemetery, in any way the owners may prefer to have them beautified. It looks very much like the ordinance was passed for some purpose not clear on the surface and as it affects the dead as well as the living, an explanation is needed.

The three great topics in the news of the past month—the North-Security decision, the first steps in the construction of the Panama Canal, and the progress of the war in the far east—are comprehensively treated in the Review of Reviews for April. In addition to the editorial summaries, Mr. Walter Wellman sketches the personnel of the Isthmian Canal Commission, which has just sailed for Panama, and outlines the successive stages of its work. Mr. E. J. Dillon, the well-known English correspondent and writer on Russian affairs, discusses the question, "Has Russia Any Strong Man?" Dr. G. Frederick Wright contributes an important paper on "Russia's Civilization in Asia," and there are brief summaries of "Russian Opinion on American 'Meddling' in the Far East," and "What the People Read in Russia," besides ten pages in the department of "Leading Articles of the Month" made up from current discussions of the Russo-Japanese war in the leading European reviews.

The Free Leaf Tobacco Bill, recommended as a substitute by Commissioner Yerkes, was favorably reported Friday and will come up in the House this week. Congressman Stanley wires the Kentuckian that the bill will surely pass the House without formidable opposition. If it can be reached in the Senate it will encounter no serious trouble there. Those interested in the bill should write to Senators J. C. Blackburn and Jas. B. McCreary, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C., urging them to use every possible effort to get the bill through before adjournment. The bill allows the buying and selling of leaf tobacco by anybody in any quantity. It will open a new market for tobacco in the South, as the retail dealers can buy tobacco in hogheads and sell it in its natural leaf.

In accordance with the will of C. M. Shrader, the infidel soldier who died at Philadelphia last month, his ashes were scattered upon the swollen waters of the Ohio at Louisville on the night of March 31. His relative, who carried out the provisions of the strange will, crossed the river in a ferry boat with a party of friends and sowed the ashes aboard.

New Haven, Conn., March 31.—Judge Gager today ruled out the sealed letter as evidence in the appeal of Wm. J. It was in the sealed letter that a bequest of $50,000 was made to Bryan.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same, but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

THE WOODS' CITIZENS

A FOREST IS MORE THAN A COLLECTION OF TREES.

It Has Its Inhabitants Who Are Quite as Interesting in Their Way as Those of a City—How to Study Them.

A forest is sometimes described as a collection of trees, and the description is about as enlightening as the statement that a city is a collection of buildings. Like the city, the forest has a vast population, without which it would be as uninteresting as a city without its citizens. We admire beautiful buildings, for themselves, but more interesting to some of us at least are the lives and works of the creatures which inhabit the buildings and trees respectively. When I enter a forest in winter or summer, I am always aware that I am not alone, though the air be so still that one might hear the growing of the trees. I know that I am watched by many eyes, and that, at every footfall, scores of ears are at all times on the alert.

If you go into the woods in the early spring, you may at first be under the impression that there is little life about you. But sit down awhile, and wait in some spot where your figure will not be too conspicuous, and you will probably see some of the creatures whose work you temporarily interrupted. First of all, perhaps, you will hear a faint, crisp drumming sound—the sound made by a wood mouse, when he drums with one fore foot on a dry leaf, and after a short interval, you will probably hear the answering "br-r-r" of another mouse. Then, if you are quiet, you will see the dainty form of the creature itself, with its tawny upper parts, white belly and feet, its large black eyes, its well-shaped, translucent ears, its trembling whiskers, and its long, silky tail, the latter held carefully off the ground in a graceful curve. Out from the shadow of a bunch of withered leaves he signs, leaps lightly over the ground to a wild cherry tree, where he searches for and eventually finds a cherry stone. A simple matter, this hunting for and finding of a meal; and yet to the mouse it was business—very important business, since it must be attended to faithfully every day if he would avoid hunger or even starvation.

Next, perhaps you will be aware that a red squirrel is peering out at you from a knot-hole in an old tree. Keep still, and, when he goes out to dine, perhaps he will betray the whereabouts of some store of nuts gathered months ago. And these little boards, how many busy days they represent—days at the end of which even the wiry legs must crawl with one fore foot on a dry leaf, and at the end of autumn, the squirrels and other creatures which have been laying up food for the winter, feel any satisfaction, akin to that which is felt by farmers when their crops are all garnered. And I wonder if, when the stores of a red squirrel are discovered and taken up by a pig—the owner does not have a feeling somewhat similar to that experienced by a thrifty man whose savings are stolen by a burglar.

And perhaps closer to you on the ground, a pellet of matter for may betray the presence of some large owl; probably the barred owl which lives in a hollow high up in the very tree against which you lean. He, too, has much business in the wood, and his business is with the mice, the squirrels, the rabbits and the grouse—with any living creature which he can kill. He is an actor of many roles, this great owl with the big round head, and the dark-brown half-human eyes. Now he is the midnight hunter, coursing the startled rabbit through the forest glades. Now he is a poacher, killing silent within the boundaries of some game preserve; and next night behold him as the farmer's ally, exterminating rats and mice and moles. At one hour he is a murderer, slaying perhaps a mother squirrel, whose babies will slowly starve to death in their nest; at the next he is an angel of mercy, ending as with lightning the sufferings of some trapped or wounded creature, which otherwise might linger in agony for days.

Yes, there is always important business going forward in the forest and the better it is understood the more important it seems. There are beavers felling trees, making dams, flooding acres of land, and building houses superior to those of certain tribes of men. There are porcupines stripping and killing a hundred trees apiece per annum; woodchucks and muskrats excavating long, winding subterranean tunnels, muskrats diving for muskels and the roots of water plants, and mink entering the water to catch fish and ponds. All the year round, and at all hours of the day and night, there are citizens of the forest city plying their trades, and doing their part toward the carrying out of "the beautiful plan."

We beg to inform planters and the trade generally that the

has been put in order, and with excellent facilities, again opens its doors for the sale of

LOOSE TOBACCO ON THE FLOOR.

Light Weights or in Hogheads, or as our friends may prefer to sell. We invite the patronage of the thousands of our friends, who so liberally patronized us the past season, and earnestly solicit a trial shipment from those who have not so favored us.

We Have Good Quarters for Teams and Drivers in the Warehouse.

That the marketing of Tobacco on the open markets by concentrating the demands, will bring better results to sellers, is self-evident truth. Public meetings, stenographers, typewriters and their offspring "Resolutions," cannot better conditions. But united determination on the part of planters to offer their Tobacco on open markets to the highest bidders will bring face to fact every known demand for Tobacco. Help us to sell your tobacco for good prices by patronizing open markets. It stands planters in hand to think of this.

WHY ARMOR IS COSTLY.

Process of Making It Is Tedious and Requires Patience.

The general public has always been mystified at the extremely high price paid for armor plate. The most important item is the great length of time required for the successful manufacture of a plate, for, on an average, every plate is being constantly worked upon, either in furnace, forge, machine shop or annealing and tempering department for a continuous period of nine months.

Other causes of high cost, says the Scientific American, are the large number of separate operations, the frequency with which the great masses must be transported and the distances over which they must be carried in their journey from one department to another.

To illustrate the vast scale on which an armor plate and gun steel works is laid out and the distances to be covered from shop to shop, we may mention that the whole establishment of one Pennsylvania steel works extends in one direction continuously for a length of a mile and a quarter and that the 40 or 50 handlings and transshipments which occur in making a single plate take place in and between such buildings as the open-hearth structure, which is 111 feet wide by 1,350 feet in length; the machine shop, 116 1/2 feet in width by 1,375 feet in length; the armor forge, 850 feet in length, and a face hardening department and an armor plate machine shop, both of which are but little less in size.

Further elements of expense are the large percentage of losses which is liable to occur, the high first cost of the extensive plants must be laid down, and the fact that new and improved methods of manufacture may at any time render the plant more or less obsolete. The greater cost of the armor is largely compensated for by its much greater resisting qualities, which makes it possible to give equal defensive qualities for 20 to 25 per cent. less weight of armor.

GLOVES IN EARLY DAYS.

Performed Curious Functions for Their Lordly Possessions.

In the early days everything was not regulated for the people, as it is now, by the government and the law courts. Europe was still young then, and people had rough and ready means of dealing with one another, of buying and selling or giving goods and property and settling disputes, says St. Nicholas. A glove, as it was very close indeed to a man's hand, came in time of taking the place of the hand itself, and sometimes took the man's place and was made to represent him.

For example: To open a fair it was necessary then to have the consent and protection of the great lord in whose country it was going to be held. Those who wished to have the fair would come to the nobleman and petition him to be present. He might be very busy, or bored at the idea of having to go, yet he would know that it must be opened or his people would be discontented. So he would say to the leaders of the people: "No, my trusty fellows, I can't open the fair in person, but I will send my glove to do it. You all know my glove. Nobody has one like it in the country. It is the one my lady mother embroidered for me in colored silks and silver wire, and it has a deep violet fringe. You can hang it above the entrance of your fair grounds as a sign that you are acting with my permission. If anyone disputes your right or touches his master's glove, I will attend to him, that's all." So the glove would travel in state to open the fair.

Servia's Drummer Dogs.

A curious feature connected with the Servian army is the manner in which most of the regiments carry the big drum. It is not, as in most countries, slung in front of the man who plays it, but is placed upon a small two-wheeled cart drawn by a single dog, which has been so trained that it keeps its place even through the longest and most tedious of marches. The drummer takes up a position behind the cart and performs on the instrument as the animal pulls it along.

VICTIM OF DROPSY.

Mrs. Barbara Collins Dies After Lingering Illness.

Mrs. Barbara E. Collins, wife of Mr. Geo. W. Collins, died Friday night at her home on South Virgin street, after an illness of about two years.

She was a great sufferer from dropsy and while her illness was of long duration her death was rather sudden.

Mrs. Collins was 54 years old and was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. She was a most excellent woman and endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. She is survived by a husband and five children.

Funeral services were held at the residence by the Rev. J. L. Wyatt Sunday afternoon and the interment took place in Hopewell cemetery.

It's the little colds that grow into big colds; the big colds that end in consumption and death. Watch the little colds. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. Hart Dead.

Mrs. Fannie Hart died Saturday at her home near Casky. She was eighteen years old. The interment took place at Casky Sunday.

The ladies of the Episcopal church served dinner in the Flack building yesterday.

REVIVAL BEGINS.

Packed Houses Turn Out To Hear Evangelist Ham.

Mr. D. B. Townner, the Distinguished Musical Director, Leads the Singing.

The Union Tabernacle Revival opened Sunday afternoon under auspicious surroundings.

Evangelist Mordecai F. Ham, the young Baptist preacher, who became an evangelist a few years ago, arrived Saturday afternoon. He attended church at the Baptist church Sunday morning. His first sermon was heard at 3 o'clock in the afternoon by about 2,500 people. The young preacher is a man of fine presence, with a clear ringing voice, and an unusual degree of personal magnetism. He attempts no sensational preaching, but his speaking is earnest and spiritual.

The music by Mr. D. B. Townner, the famous singer, is praised by everybody. His solos constitute a most enjoyable feature of the meetings.

At night the crowd was still larger, probably numbering 3,000 people. The congregation was attentive, but there were but few responses to the usual invitations.

Two more services were held yesterday and a morning prayer meeting at the Christian church. The same order of exercises will be observed today and the rest of the week. Services at 3 and 7:30 p. m.

TELEPATHY PLAINLY SHOWN

Sister Foresaw Brother's Death at Hour of Doom.

Louisville, Ky., March 26.—An extraordinary case of telepathy is reported in connection with the accidental killing of Henry Shepard, near Shepardsville while on a coon hunt with Arch Prather.

At almost the identical moment that he was killed by the discharge of a shotgun, his sister, Miss Edith Shepard, who was visiting friends here, became suddenly delirious and cried out the name of her brother as if she were talking to him. In her delirium she was heard to cry: "Tell me you are not dead. Henry; that what I see is not the truth."

Miss Shepard walked the floor of her room and hid her face in her arms as if trying to avoid some horrible sight. Soon afterward she lapsed into unconsciousness in which she remained for several hours.

Miss Shepard could not have heard of her brother's death, for the news of the accident did not reach this city until the next day.
